

Institute for Policy and Engagement Public Engagement Masterclasses

Join the Institute for Policy and Engagement team to find out how we can support you in getting your research out to public audiences. Hear from academic peers across all faculties about their public engagement experiences; the successes and challenges they've overcome and their top tips for engaging public audiences with your research.

You are invited to join us at all four sessions or come along to those covering areas which interest you.

Details of the sessions are as follows:

Session 1 – Wednesday 13th October, 1.30-3pm, Microsoft Teams

We will explore what public engagement is and why it's important and what reward and recognition for public engagement activity could look like.

Academic colleagues will discuss their digital public engagement activity and citizen science work.

Book your place here.

Session 2 – Wednesday 17th November, 1.30-3pm, Microsoft Teams

We will look at how knowledge exchange and public engagement complement each other and how to overcome barriers to public engagement participation.

Academic colleagues will discuss their international public engagement activity and patient and public involvement work.

Book your place here.

Session 3 – Wednesday 15th December, 1.30-3pm, Microsoft Teams

We will look at evaluating public engagement activity and various evaluation techniques.

Academic colleagues will discuss their outreach activity and Co-creation work.

Book your place here.

Session 4 - Date and time TBC

Following on from the REF outcome, we will focus on the link between PE activity and REF impact case studies, with speakers from across the University and from other institutions

If you have any questions relating to the Public Engagement Masterclasses, please get in touch with Amy Hawksworth amy.hawksworth@nottingham.ac.uk.

We look forward to seeing you!